time. He spent a week at Salem recently. He was not seen in the city above once or twice and then not at the newspaper office or political headquarters. He put in his time seeing some of the "gardeners" constituents in the suburbs anywhere from one to ten miles in the country. He ate with them, slept with them, he got their "views" upon all the important national questions of the day and the man who can get their votes away from Mr. Hermann is not born. Mr. Hermann believes the successful politician never overestimates the intelligence of the people, and never gets out of office. He believes in keeping in touch with all the popular clamor of the day. If anything new can be sprung that he cannot get onto with all four feet he will retire for some time. But he does not intend to retire.

Geo. Downing does not readily pungle up. He is fox and close, but neither is a crime. An old Oregon farmer, admitted to the bar, a village politician, he has easily come in contact with all the elements that a man's shrewdness and develop his cunning. Compelled to deal not only with the criminals in the state, his position as superintendent of a large state institution brings him in contact with all the mercenary element who want the trade of the institution, some of whom stoop to everything just short of the line the crossing of which would send them to his wards. If that is not a training to develop a man's sagacity, where can it be found? So long as grand juries and special legislative committees acquit him of all wrongdoing in his penitentiary management a few newspapers, agitators and disappointed contractors can whistle. They can only popularize a man who is doing his enemies all the time and has the governor of a great state at his back. The JOURNAL thinks it has some newspaper sense, but it was never able to get hold of sufficient evidence of wrongdoing to charge him with a crime. It would be straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel to make Mr. Downing out a villain merely because he is a Democrat. He is in a position where he may make mistakes and be imposed upon or even make money out of his office and yet not be convicted of it. But his strongest point, and one that his enemies cannot easily get over, is that George does not readily pungle up for campaigns or political blackmail of any sort.

The Populists are not yet in power and have really had no pull at the public test and already have a peek of trouble. There were Sheldon and Carroll of Union county who got away with $2075 and the former as president only attended the state board of Equalization four hours. It is now denied that they were Populists, but Governor Penney was very careful to appoint only men who were Republicans or Democrats. It would probably be found that they were recommended by Populist Elector Pierce. Then poor old man Shipley, who put the State Agricultural college money where it could not be got at conveniently by the trustees when they needed it, he is a Populist. He was put under bonds by motion of W. A. Sample, a chief of Populists. And the Populists Upton and McEwan are charged with taking mileage by way of San Francisco. The latter were the victims of a job in one sense. Of course, they could have refused, but one of the best Republicans in Oregon moved that they be allowed that and it was voted unanimously.

THE RIGHT TO LIVE.

Commenting on an alleged discovery that would enable all persons to live to be a hundred years old, the Oregonian expresses a doubt as to the value of the discovery. It takes the position that the average individual, has outlived his usefulness at sixty and it would be better for such a one and for society if he would cease to live, in place of inventing a means for prolonging his useless existence. The Oregonian tries to show that nearly all great achievements were accomplished by persons under sixty and that after reaching that age, people are of no earthly use to themselves, their relatives or the world in which they live.

The paper referred to, in adopting such an extreme utilitarian view, leaves out of consideration the humanitarian doctrine and fact that every living creature seeks to live as long as it can and every reasoning being seeks to prolong life as far as possible. The mere right to live does not seem to have entered the writer's head. As that right is not questioned by anyone it cuts off his argument just below its rather long ears.

The statement that all the best work of an average man's life is done by sixty is not founded on fact. Many a man in Oregon is doing as good work as was ever done by him in his life and is over sixty or even seventy. The Old Emperor William of Germany, Von Moltke, Bismarck, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Judge Dundy, and even Harvey Scott, if the Oregonian, are examples of great usefulness after sixty. Gladstone is making the most remarkable parliamentary battle in history and is over eighty.

But these are not average men. The ordinary man or woman, whether their lives be a help or a burden to society, are as much entitled to live as the greatest genius. The right to live is an inherent natural right, to be abridged only for the protection of society. A law making it an offense against society, or a crime to be over sixty and not be a producer of wealth, would probably be declared unconstitutional. It is not presumed that the Oregonian would propose so Spartan a measure as killing off all who are no longer useful from a money-making standpoint.

If however, like thousands of other people, you have learned that you must "draw the line at old," this is to remind you that there is a clean, delicate and healthful vegetable substitute, called which if used in place of lard, permits you to eat pies, pastry, patties and such "good things" without fear of dyspeptic consequences.

There's abundant proof, but none so convincing and so pleasant as a trial for yourself. We invite it. For sale everywhere. REFUSE ALL SUBSTITUTES.

BIT OF DECORATION.

HOW A CLEVER GIRL DEVISED A TOILET TABLE.

It is Economy, Efficiency and of Very Little Cost and May Easily be Copied or Modified by Any of Her Handy Sisters, Cousins or Aunts.

The device shown in the drawing is that of a clever girl, as told in the New York Recorder, who determined to have an attractive spring and summer room, and who used her wits to that good end. The foundation is a simple pine table of the sort used in the kitchen of every home, and the trimmings are all inexpensive white and pure white linen. The table she first rubbed down with sandpaper, then painted with white enamel paint, for although it would be covered it suited her fastidious taste to know that her stand was as tasteful beneath the draperies as it was effective from without. After the painting was done and the glass was in readiness for further treatment the only difficult part of the work began.

Plain white swiss was cut in lengths sufficient to hang from the table top to the floor to allow for a 3-inch hem and was made full enough to be pleated round three of the table's sides. Then the lengths were stitched together, the hem was stitched in palest pink silk, and over the entire surface of the swiss were painted blossoms in all the beauty of their tender color with a spray here and there, and with the falling petals everywhere about. Common oil paints were used for the purpose, mixed with an indelible fluid that the young artist found for sale and which rendered the colors fast and washable, while they retained the quality that the oil paints give.

When the draperies were complete, they were tacked fast to the wooden edge in a series of small, full plaits, which caused the whole to hang like an ample frill, and round the top to cover the edge and to make all neat, was tacked palest pink ribbon with ornamental tassels. Then a pad of perfumed cotton was made to fit the table top and was covered with soft silk, the shade of the ribbon already used, and over this was laid a cover of linen embroidered and finished with a frill. The wise girl who planned the whole knew and recognized the fact that a toilet stand in constant use must be easily cleaned if its beauty is to remain, so for her cover she selected linen lawn and embroidered it in silks of the fastest dye. She used blossoms for the motive of her design and showed them in all the sweetness of the spring, and she finished the cover with a hem and a fall of fine linen lace.

At the nearest carpenter shop was ordered an oblong frame of pine 3 inches wide, and into it was fitted a mirror of heavy glass; then the pine was painted with white enamel paint, and on it as a background were strewn sprays of the lovely blossoms in all their tender tones. Here and there a straggling tendril overlapped the glass, and occasional blossoms were painted within the frame, as though they had fallen from the sprays above, and when all was complete this last device was found to brighten the entire effect, for the reflection adds as nothing else could do and gives a peculiar charm which without the painted glass would be wholly lost.

TOILET TABLE COVER.

Into the wall above the mirror she secured a horizontal brass hook of the sort used to hang cages on, and on this three curtains of the painted swiss. These last she draped against the wall, behind the mirror and down the ends of the table to the floor. She finished their edges with a graceful frill and caught them back in place with ruffled bands of swiss.

The Luncheon Grass.

At a luncheon the other day the table cover was of very pale maize colored damask, fine and shining. In the center was a low, oblong dish filled with blue garden forget-me-nots. The china was of the same shade of blue, and at each place was a bunch of the flowers.

At another luncheon, which the hostess called "pansy," the dark, polished wood was left bare except for the centerpiece and doilies, which were of fine white linen embroidered in pansies of every conceivable shade. Bowls of the blossoms stood on the tables, and the china was simple, thin white French china, hand painted in pansies.

Remedy For Tough Chalks.

Here is a fact which every boarding house keeper in the land should know. The toughest fowl can be made tender if it is put into cold water and cooked very slowly for six or seven hours.

FOR OUR SMALL GIRLS.

Made of Changeable Wool Materials in Ruffled Effects.

Little girls wear quaint little coats of rich tapestry of black, corded silk, with gayly braided sleeves, and of the hand-some imported cloths which show many colors in their weaves and are made up with facings and linings of silk. A pretty model in reddish fawn cloth has a collar and facings of shot red and fawn an-ure, with capes and cuffs of the same silk. The Tyrolean hat of coarse red-dish sage straw is trimmed with bows of shaded red and green ribbon.

Another pretty little coat of cloth, with threads of red and green woven in a gray blue weft, has a double cape collar of green corded silk and closes with a double row of buttons. Lighter still are the little coats of changeable wools in corded or crepon effects, with pipings of silk in some bright color showing at the edges of the flared capes. All manner of little reefers in blue, with scarlet edges braided with black or white, will be used during the summer, and handsome coats for warm weather cut on the reefer plan are made of the corded silks in gray blues and dull browns and tans, trimmed only with the double rows of pearl buttons.

Pink Corded Gingham.

The gingham counter contains a prodigious display of fascinating gingham this season, many of which lend themselves to silk and taffeta effects. The gingham gown in the illustration is a pink corded fabric, a very aristocratic connection of the plebeian gingham itself. The cord resembles a tuck and runs across the bodice. The flounce is of Irish point, and the waist garniture, which carries on a bolero jacket effect, is also of the same lace. A gown of this kind is handsome enough for any social function not of a strictly formal nature.

The handsome novelty gingham will be much worn this summer. They cost from 20 to 50 cents a yard. A gown like the one represented in the illustration would call for the following expenditure:

30 yards of taffeta gingham at 30c..... $9.00
5 yards of lace at 10c..... 50c
Lining..... 2.00
Dressmaker, 3 days, at $2.50..... 7.50
Total..... $19.00

Eggs Creamed.

Boil for 20 minutes as many eggs as you desire. Make a pint of cream sauce. This will be enough for 6 eggs. Have ready on a platter as many slices of well browned toast as you have eggs. Spread each slice with the cream and lay on the eggs cut in slices, pour over the rest of the sauce, dust with pepper and heat a moment in the oven. Garnish with parsley.

Slate For the Kitchen.

Nothing conduces more toward smooth running household machinery than for the one who does the daily marketing to find a list of wants ready to be hand each day. Also for the housekeeper who trusts to her own or her cook's brains to supply this at a moment's notice. Something is sure to be forgotten, and at the wrong time eggs, or sugar, or butter, or spice will be wanting. A little contrivance that will be found useful is made of a small slate. Paste three slips of brown paper on one side, and on these print nicely a list of all necessary household articles or materials. When you think of one that needs replenishing, make a mark on the slate opposite it. Fasten a sharpened slate pencil by a bit of picture wire to the right hand corner. You can make it as ornamental as you choose with a can of enamel. Instead of pasting on strips of paper, rule the spaces and give the slate three coats of white enamel inside the lines; then print the list on these spaces with a tiny paint brush and black or red points. Enamel the frame and fasten a small brass screw hook in it to hang it up by.

A Stylish Cape.

A cape which queens it over all other capes seen so far this season has its foundation of black satin. The seams of the pointed yoke are outlined with jet. A tall ruffling of plaited black chiffon forms the collar. Shirred on to the yoke is a short overcape of black silk net exquisitely wrought with uncut jet. Below this the black satin of the main cape is visible. It is decorated with hand painted dark purple violets, and the cape is lined with changeable violet silk.
